Location

World's most northerly palm beach.
There are now 100 in the white sand of Denmark's most exotic beach.

Known to most as a traffic hub, but Frederikshavn has a lot more to offer. An unusually high number of shops and restaurants, and even the only palm beach in Denmark!

Frederikshavn has its own very special atmosphere thanks to its maritime history, idyllic setting, and the ferries plying back and forth to Sweden, Norway and Læsø. The vast number of visitors to the town (around five million a year) have nurtured a shopping mecca, including one of the country's longest pedestrian streets. Nature also plays a role, with a wealth of activities and things to do on land and sea.

World's most northerly palm beach

It all started in 2004 with 30 palm trees. There are now 100 in the white sand of Denmark's most exotic beach. On a summer's day, when the sun beams down from a cloudless sky, you could almost think you were in the Caribbean. But this is the Kattegat and Denmark at their very best.

Frederikshavn presents a delightful prospect of fun for the entire family, boasting an extraordinary vantage point from the unique platform at Pikkerbakken's southern end. From here, visitors can enjoy a spectacular view over Frederikshavn and the Kattegat Sea. The locality is rich in attractions including the Coastal Museum, Bunker Museum, military installations, as well as a deer park and botanical gardens. As one approaches the Port of Frederikshavn, one of Denmark's busiest commercial harbors, the historic Krudttårnet (Gunpowder Tower) greets them, serving as a nod to the era when Frederikshavn was known as Fladstrand. This historical monument also highlights the town's annual celebration of its rich history through the vibrant and colorful Tordenskjold Days.

All the Travel Preps You Need to Know

Frederikshavn is easily accessible by all means of transport

Aalborg Airport, just 45 minutes from Frederikshavn, serves as a hub for many European routes. An alternative to air travel is the maritime connections that cross the Skagerrak and Kattegat, allowing for a combination of car and ship transport.

Frederikshavn is also connected to the rest of Europe via the E45/A7 motorway, which extends from Frederikshavn in the north to the Danish-German border in the south, continuing onwards throughout much of Europe. Therefore, if one prefers traveling by bus or personal car, it's quite feasible.

Of course, Frederikshavn can also be reached by train.

Aalborg Airport

Several airlines operate flights to Aalborg Airport.

Visit lovely Skagen

Skagen, Denmark's northernmost town, is imbued with the charm of seaside hotels. Here, iconic yellow houses meet art from the Skagen painters and vast culinary experiences – both local and international. It inspires the desire to linger just to experience the sea's roar, the cozy streets, and the restaurant menus once again. Skagen is truly something special.

The 3 main things you're gonna need.

- Your Best Sports Gear
Pack your favorite sportswear that makes you feel confident and ready to win. Don't forget that extra pair of lucky shoes or your go-to water bottle that never lets you down.
- Positive Vibes and Good Energy
Bring along your enthusiasm and a winning attitude! Whether you're competing or cheering, your positive energy will make the games even more memorable.
- An Appetite for Adventure
Frederikshavn has more than just sports; get ready to explore the local culture, try some Danish cuisine, and maybe even dip your toes in the sea. Be open to new experiences!

Enjoy the nature,
the sea, and the open spaces.

Bratten Beach

Just north of Frederikshavn lies Bratten Strand, a beloved oasis for many. Here, you'll find a charming summerhouse area and a beautiful beach, perfect for everything from long walks to a refreshing dip in the sea on warmer days.

Explore Denmark's East Coast: From Serene Shores to Stunning Seascapes

Discover the stunning beaches along Denmark's east coast, stretching from Sæby in the south to Skagen in the north. These pristine shores offer something for everyone—whether you're seeking relaxation, adventure, or simply a breathtaking view.

Starting in Sæby, you'll find tranquil beaches perfect for unwinding, with soft sands and gentle waves that make it a haven for families and couples alike. As you travel north, the coastline reveals a series of picturesque beaches, each with its own unique charm.

One of the gems along this route is Bratten Strand, just north of Strandby. This idyllic spot is a favorite escape for many, featuring a cozy summerhouse area and a beautiful beach that invites you to take long walks or plunge into the refreshing sea on warmer days. The peaceful atmosphere and natural beauty make Bratten Strand a perfect getaway.

Continuing your journey to the very tip of Denmark, you'll reach Skagen, where the North Sea and the Baltic Sea meet in a spectacular display of nature's power. The beaches here are expansive and wild, offering endless opportunities for exploration and adventure.

Whether you're basking in the sun, strolling along the shore, or enjoying water sports, the east coast from Sæby to Skagen offers some of the most beautiful and inviting beaches Denmark has to offer.
